Only 16.7% of students graduate from Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary on-time (two or four years depending on the degree), but 44.4% do eventually graduate. This ranks the school among the worst in the country at graduating students on-time, but on average when it comes to the overall graduation rate.

Based on the caliber of students that attend Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary we would have expected an overall graduation rate of 45.9%. This is on par with the actual rate at which the college graduates students and suggests that Midwestern Baptist Theological Seminary is performing on average when the previous academic achievement of students is factored in.
